

My vacations in the United States

I had never imagined that one day I could travel to the United States and spend a long vacation, it seemed very impossible to be able to travel outside of Mexico due to the complications that it is at the time of being able to get a tourist visa. The United States is a dream country for many people because of the great job opportunities that can be found. ¿Could you tell me how you spent your vacation?

Well, I'll tell you about how I lived my vacations. It was July 11, 2015. I had woken up very early to prepare my things to wait for the truck that would take me to the United States. I had prepared myself a few days before to be able to buy typical Mexican things and to be able to take my relatives with whom I would spend my vacations. On the way to the border that separates the United States from Mexico, it was around 1 in the morning, I was waiting for my turn to deliver my documents so I could go through and continue with the trip, but they were taking too long and no one who was in line they knew why. After a while I realized on the news they had said that a well-known prisoner in Mexico escaped from jail and the border was closed for security reasons, and that was the main reason why we spent more than 6 hours waiting for that the border be reopened and continue with my trip.

When I got to my destination I checked what the news was really saying, I couldn't believe it, I had thought it was fake news. It was a very bad experience since it was my first time traveling and because of that circumstance the trip was very heavy, and now before traveling my relatives ask me, Can you tell me where you like to travel more by plane because of the speed or by truck because of the economic?
